EDITOR'S NOTE

The Nsukka Journal of the Humanities (NJH) is growing from strength to strength. Thanks to our numerous subscribers both within and outside the University of Nigeria for their steadfastness in using the medium to ventilate their intellectual accomplishments. Our prayers are that their fountains of knowledge never dry but continue to overflow positively for mankind's benefit. The seminal paper of Mazi Professor J. Okoro-Ijoma, an accomplished and celebrated historian on Igbo History Since K. O. Dike... is germane especially for graduate students of Igbo history who may be interested in new themes for further research. Such compass, as Mazi Professor Okoro Ijoma has bequeathed to young historians, is needed from our eminent professors in other disciplines in the humanities and social sciences.

I am, in deeded, lucky for being able to access TETFUND intervention fund during my tenure as editor of NJH. We have used the fund to acquire state-of-the-art equipment to furnish NJH office in the faculty. It has made possible the early publication of this last edition for 2016. On behalf of the editorial board, I wish to express our immense gratitude to TETFUND especially the chairman, TETFUND, University of Nigeria Nsukka, Prof. Anene, for making this possible. We hope that this partnership would be sustained for the growth of our Journal.

Thank you.
